

JAPS BLOODY VICTORY

Lose Heavily, But Drive the Stubborn Russians From Strong Positions.

THEY FACED A RAGING FIRE.

Way to Victory Blocked by Wire Entanglements and Every Device of Modern Defensive Warfare—Warships Assist in the Battle.

Tokio, May 28.—The Japanese army has swept the Russians from Kin-Chou and in a desperate night attack stormed the almost impregnable position of the Russians on Nanshan hill, west of Taitienwan.

The battle raged in the hills all through the night and fragments of telegrams from the Japanese headquarters report that the engagement is still in progress and that the Japanese are still pursuing the Russians north from Nanshan and the head of Taitienwan bay.

The Russians had made elaborate preparations to check the Japanese movement south on the Liao-Tung peninsula toward Port Arthur. They had fortified the high ground on the south shore of Taitienwan bay, their works extending to the east and the west. The extreme Russian right was at Hushangtai and the extreme left at Nanshan hill. This hill was the strongest part of the line. A series of batteries, strongly emplaced, crowded its crest, while rifle pits extended around its sides. Mines had been placed lower down on this hill and around the base on the northern and eastern sides were stretches well-made wire entanglements.

Foes Are Face to Face. A strong Russian force was posted at Kin-Chou. It consisted of infantry and artillery. The Japanese first occupied the line of hills to the east of Kin-Chou. Their position formed an almost perfect right angle, showing its southern front to Taitienwan and its western front to Kin-Chou. Chih-Chan village was the apex of this angle; the extreme right of the Japanese line rested at Chen-Cha-Tien, which is almost due north of Chih-Chan, while the extreme left was at Chai-Tsiao. Back of this angle the attacking force assembled in complete security.

The Russians apparently attempted to draw the Japanese attack last Saturday, for their batteries opened fire slowly on the enemy on that day. The Japanese, however, refused to be drawn into an attack until the positions of Russians, their guns and their strength had been fully developed. To this end the Japanese began a series of careful maneuvers, their officers working their way close enough to the Russian position to draw the enemy's fire. They thus secured fragments of shells for the purpose of ascertaining the caliber of the Russian guns.

Russian Positions Revealed. The Japanese discovered also a number of large emplacements, they did not learn the number of guns contained therein. These emplacements faced to the north and to the east.

The guns fired by the Russians developed a range of 8,500 metres. Eight heavy guns posted on the Russian right in the vicinity of Hushangtai also were discovered and another strong Russian position developed by these reconnaissances on another hill southwest of Nanshan hill, where the Russians had a series of shelter trenches on the shore of Taitienwan bay, close to the head of the bay, where the Russians had established a series of positions. Here were set up the searchlights which might play over the Japanese angle in the hills to the northeast.

Further reconnaissances developed the fact that west of Liu-Chia-Tien the Russians had no defenses extending to the northward from Yen-Chia-Tien to the west coast of Liao-Tung peninsula. There were no defenses whatever, except the force posted at Kin-Chou.

Japanese Seize an Opportunity. This gap in the defense was a fatal defect in the Russian position, and when it was perceived the Japanese extended their right to the north and east, enveloping Kin-Chou and the Russian extreme right. The Japanese left also was extended to Wang-Chia-Tung on the shore of Taitienwan bay, and the center moved forward.

Wednesday morning at half past five the Japanese attacked Kin-Chou and for three hours they had an artillery duel with the batteries on Nanshan hill. The Russian gunners searched the Japanese lines with their fire, but failed to inflict much damage.

The battle was resumed at dawn on Thursday. Three Japanese gunboats on the shore shelled the Japanese left from down the batteries on both sides hammered away at each other. Russians in Full Flight. At an early hour the Japanese infantry moved forward and at 20 minutes past five on Thursday morning they entered Kin-Chou, the Russians retiring to the south. The fighting continued into Thursday night, the Japanese pressing to the south and storming Nanshan hill. They followed the retreating Russians through the southern hills.

The reports received here fail to cover the events on the Russian right. It is probable, however, that the Russians have abandoned these positions.

No information is given concerning losses; they probably were heavy on both sides.

The Russian resistance at Nanshan hill was stubborn. The Japanese made a series of assaults before the Russians finally yielded the position. The Russians abandoned this hill at 3 a. m., retreating toward Nan-Quan-Ling, where it is understood a second line of defenses exist.

The Russians may rally at this line of defenses unless they have been disordered by the defeat at Kin-Chou and Nanshan. The Russians had a series of mines planted at Taitienwan station on the railroad, which were exploded. The station was destroyed. The Japanese forces were under fire for 10 hours.

Battle a Bloody Affair.

The general staff here has received telegrams from the commanders commending the bravery and fortitude of their men.

Subsequent reports received here indicate that the storming of Nanshan hill was a bloody affair. The Japanese first centered their fire on the Russian batteries, in which work they were aided by four gunboats from Kin-Chou bay. They succeeded in silencing many of the enemy's guns. The Russians had constructed a series of trenches around the hill on a terrace protected by wire entanglements and other such devices.

The Japanese made a series of rushes, but they were in vain. The deadly rifle and cannon fire of the enemy checked them repeatedly. Finally at 3 o'clock in the afternoon the Japanese reformed and stormed the crest of the hill. The Russians held to their position doggedly and it was 7 o'clock in the evening before the Japanese finally gained possession of the ridge.

Russians Had the Advantage.

A Japanese officer of high rank made the following statement to the correspondent of the Associated Press. "The Japanese in attacking Kin-Chou and Nanshan hill had to fight against great odds. The Russians were in full command of the strategic advantages afforded by nature and these advantages were augmented by the newest inventions for defense. The forts on Nanshan hill were armed with heavy guns. The Japanese had only field guns, heavy guns being unavailable on account of the difficulties of transportation.

"Our army deserves great credit for having driven the Russians from this stronghold. It was a feat previously considered to have been impossible. If four our losses have been heavy, but we have gained the strongest point, barring our way to the investment of Port Arthur."

London, May 28.—The Japanese telegram has received the following: "Kin-Chou and all the heights in its vicinity have been taken and our troops are pushing the Russians toward Port Arthur."

Within 12 Miles of Port Arthur. The Tokyo correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says he learns that the Japanese troops are now within 12 miles of Port Arthur and that the Russians suffered heavier casualties than the Japanese, who have taken guns and other material and a few prisoners. He predicts a further success as Japan is now increasing her efforts in all directions.

The Tokyo correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says that the Japanese captured many guns at Kin-Chou. A dispatch to the Central News from Harbin says the Japanese losses during the fighting at Kin-Chou are said to be 12,000 men killed. It is said that these figures have been confirmed by an official dispatch.

Berlin, May 28.—The Tokyo correspondent of the Tageblatt sends the following under date of May 27. "It is generally believed here that General Oku succeeded on May 26 in entering a portion of the Fourth Russian sharpshooters division under Major General Fock, having taken the heights between Port Arthur and Kin-Chou on May 24-25, and that the capture of this body is expected.

The fight was most bitter and stubborn on both sides and the losses were severe."

Koreans Cut Telegraph Lines.

The Militar Wochenblatt estimates that the Russian field force, inclusive of the Siberian reserves, number 150,000 with 400 guns and that the European reinforcements now mobilizing will bring the total up to 250,000 with 638 guns.

The Japanese field army, inclusive of the reserves, numbers 225,000 men with 750 guns, but the Militar Wochenblatt says that it does not know precisely how many have been landed in Korea.

Seoul, May 28.—Koreans in the Kin-Chou district south of Song-Jin have destroyed the local telegraph office and several miles of wire. They had petitioned that the line be removed, asserting that its presence constituted the only reason for the repeated Russian expeditions into the district. No official action was taken and the Koreans destroyed the lines themselves.

Another Explosion Victim Dead. Louisville, May 28.—Gabe Leitzert, of Webster, W. Va., white deckhand injured in the explosion on the tugboat Fred Wilson, died at the Marine hospital. This brings the total number of deaths up to 11.

Hotel Guests Burned to Death. Lawton, Okla., May 28.—In a fire that destroyed the Farmers' hotel, John Brannon and Patrick McCabe, former men on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway, were burned to death.

McDonald Is Acquitted.

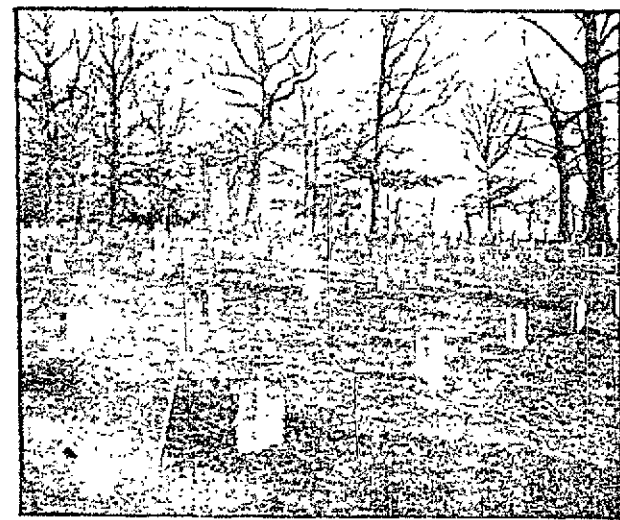

Bedford, Ind., May 28.—The jury in the trial of James McDonald, charged with the murder of Miss Sarah Schuchter, returned a verdict of not guilty.

COMRADES FOREVER A MEMORIAL DAY POEM BY T. C. HARBAUGH

THE rose today is blooming by the winding Cevenance,
Today the lily lifts her crest where stood the tents of Lee.
The orle is singing where the cannon tore the pine,
And Peace has raised an altar fair between the battle lines:
The grass is growing tender on the old war fields afar,
And Love has hid forevermore the gaping wounds of War;
No longer stand the sentinels where in hatred once they stood,
And sentries guard no sleeping camps in Chickamauga's wood.

THE iron fleets have vanished from the rivers of the south;
The buckled feeds her little brood within the cannon's mouth;
But deep within the forest and beneath the ocean's foam
Are camping yet the gallant men who neerer came home.
They slumber in their coats of blue in Shenandoah's glen,
They sleep beneath the trenches that were filled with armed men,
They rest in Georgia's fields that check beneath the warrior's tread—
On many a battlefield of fame are sleeping freedom's dead.

WE cover them with flowers, for they nobly wore the blue—
We give the choicest blossoms to the heroes who were true—
On the flag that waved above them on the crimson fields of war
There's not today a missing stripe and not a missing star.
They covered it with glory and beneath its folds they died,
They followed through the battle's flame the banner of their pride,
And that is why we weave today with loving hands the wreath
And lay it on the breasts of those who died a hero's death.

Where the Soldiers Lie in Arlington Cemetery

How peaceful to the landscape where the crimson rivers ran!
The air is filled with music by the rushing Rapidan;
The o'erred no longer flashes and the bugle now is still,
And children play where grew the guns upon the deadly hill.
Each day tattoo is beaten; each day beneath the tree
We lay some one who helped to make our country truly free.
The gallant ranks grow thinner, for the veterans are few,
And soon the rest will bloom above the last that wore the blue.

NO comrade then will bear a wreath to where a comrade lies.
No comrade then will bend the knee beneath the vaulted skies,
But still by loving hands the wreath of fame will woven be,
And flowers on the brave will fall from sounding sea to sea.
The beauty of the lily and the glory of the rose
Will Nature shed in all the camps where freedom's dead repose.
Content to let her children rest where flowers deck the sod,
In the heart of their great country and the bosom of their God.

THEY'll wake in God's bright morning when the mists have rolled away,
The men who for their country stood before the ranks in gray;
The trumpets of Jehovah, ringing loud and ringing true,
Will call to heaven's camping grounds the mighty hosts in blue;
He'll call them from the meadows, from the mountain's rugged crest,
He'll call them from the rivers, from the ocean's heaving breast;
And once again united as they battled in their prime,
They will comrades be forever in that everlasting time.

W. C. T. U. REQUESTS.

Two of Them Made for Observance of Sabbath Tomorrow.

The following requests have been made to the people of Connellsville for the observance of the Sunday laws tomorrow:

"Again we kindly request everyone who has been violating the laws for Sabbath observance to heed the warnings given during the week in our town papers.

"We hope the law will be respected and it will not be necessary to make any information, but if we must, so it will be. Any who persist in treating this law with contempt are not antagonizing the Union and Christians of Connellsville and New Haven, but the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

"Arrangements will be completed in a short time which will secure an agent who will act in conjunction with the Union and Christians of Connellsville. Our next request is that all who desire to see a Christian Sabbath in our town will aid by reporting on Mondays to any member of the Union all who sell contrary to law. We insist on Sabbath observance, but do so kindly.

"It is not our province to enforce the law in its entirety, but we refer to drug stores selling anything aside from medicines and all other places open for the purpose of selling.

"In regard to the article on 'The Moral Standard of Connellsville,' while our Union is not responsible for it, we heartily say Amen, and thank the one whose conviction led to such an expression."

TROUBLE AT MASONTOWN.

Citizens' Poise Got Excited and Wounded One of Their Number.

Masontown, May 28.—(Special.)—A raid on a supposed party of burglars at Bessemer works last night resulted in the wounding of David Lardin, a well known citizen of this place. Word has been telephoned from Masontown that three men who had committed an assault and burglary at Masontown were headed this way. A close watch was kept and finally word came from Bessemer that three suspicious characters were playing cards in a shanty near that place. A posse of citizens was hastily formed and started for the supposed scene of lawlessness.

Three men were arrested, and when they were being taken through Masontown one of them made a break for liberty. The posse had no leader, and immediately a dozen men fired their revolvers after the fugitive. Lardin, who was standing in front of the Sterner House, was wounded in the back by a stray bullet.

The men gave their names as Mike Horv, Allegheny county; Mike Tetrick, of Johnstown, and Mike Zelen, of Unintown. The latter, according to the foreign bunkers at Unintown, is a hard working man and is not thought to be implicated in the Masontown job. All three are held pending an investigation.

ELK LEAGUE OPENING

Between Connellsville and Unintown Teams This Afternoon.

The league season of the Elk League of Western Pennsylvania will open this afternoon at Marietta-Sullivan wagon park between Connellsville and Unintown. The game will be called at 3 o'clock. The local nine are out 1-0 win, but they are up against a strong opposition. Unintown has played several games and on paper they are pretty well balanced.

McKeeport's team, which was defeated yesterday afternoon at McKeeport by No. 11 of Pittsburg, will play in Connellsville at Marietta-Sullivan park, Monday, in the morning at 10 o'clock and in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. The batteries this afternoon will be Sneddon and Whaley for Connellsville and Powell or Patterson and Wilhelm for Unintown.

COUNTY AUDITORS' REPORT

Now Ready and Will Be Presented to Court in June.

The report of the county auditors is now ready for filing and will be presented to court on the first Monday of June, the opening of the next term. Nothing has been said or done yet that would indicate whether or not Ex-Steward Newcomer would take exceptions to the surcharges made against him by the auditors. None have yet been entered at least and it is not expected that any will be. Neither has there been any movement on the part of the county commissioners or anyone else toward having the cash account opened up for further investigation.

By the recent decision of the court the matter was left in such a shape that the auditors had nothing further to do in the matter.

RAILROAD DISCIPLINE.

J. B. Yohe's Paper on That Topic Before Railway Club

AT PITTSBURG LAST NIGHT.

It Was Devoted Chiefly to the Brown System, Which Has Proven Effective Without Suspension of Men Who Are on Trial.

The final meeting for the season of 1903-1904 of the Railway Club of Pittsburgh was held last night at the Hotel Henry, Pittsburgh. From the expression of almost everyone present one would infer that this was the most successful meeting of the year, so far as the topic under consideration and the discussion of it were concerned. The paper, entitled "Discipline," was presented by General Superintendent J. B. Yohe, of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad, one of the best known disciplinarians in the business. It was a subject of that quality known as "human interest," and an interesting discussion followed Mr. Yohe's presentation of the topic. Among those who participated were E. M. Herr, general manager of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company; Dr. X. C. Scott of Cleveland, and Colonel J. M. Schoonmaker, vice president and general manager of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie.

After speaking of the historical side of discipline as applied to the railroads, including the "discipline by fine" and the "discipline by restitution" phases, Mr. Yohe took up the modern situation, referring incidentally to what is known as the Brown method of discipline without suspension that was originated by George R. Brown, former general superintendent of the Fall Brook railway.

"On most of our railroads today," said Mr. Yohe, "the division superintendent is charged with the responsibility of conducting investigations and applying discipline, in this he is aided by the trainmaster. Blue Monday, or 'court day,' is looked upon by the average employe with fear and trembling. He fears the result if he tells the truth, and he trembles, fearing that he may be found out if he does not tell the truth, so he approaches the superintendent with the full determination of concealing his feelings by telling as little as possible and accepting the consequences. On other important railroads a board of inquiry is appointed to conduct investigations and apply discipline. This board usually consists of one officer from each department. It is thought that under this plan more facts are gleaned and under the intelligent questioning of the examining board the employe is made to feel that if he tells the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, he will receive justice. This system also has some objectionable features, the most notable being the disposition on the part of heads of departments to 'tackle it onto the other fellow.' However, the result is usually satisfactory to all concerned, and the employe generally accepts the decision of the board of inquiry with better grace than he would that rendered by any single individual, and there is also less liability of the case being appealed to a higher official. All investigations, whether conducted by individual or board, should be fair and impartial, the decision reached should be based upon the evidence produced, and the sentence imposed with-out fear or favor, always, however, tempering justice with mercy.

"The greatest care should be exercised by the official charged with the duty of conducting investigations. He should be a man of wide experience in railway service, one tireless in his efforts to secure all the facts in the case, willing to go over the ground personally, if necessary, so as to get himself in the other man's place, and if, perchance he should discover that the one under suspicion has performed his duty to the best of his ability and understanding, he should not hesitate to overlook the offense, but first have a heart to heart talk with his man alone in his office, pointing out to him the effect of the accident on the reputation of his company, and on his own reputation as a railway official. On the other hand, if after a careful investigation, it is found that the one being investigated has misrepresented his case, made false statements or withheld facts, he should be punished by actual suspension, or, if the circumstances warrant such a course, be dismissed. If extreme penalty is imposed, it should be final."

Fixing Responsibility for Crime.

Deputy Coroner J. T. Ross of Brownsville, Thursday evening held an inquest into the deaths of Clyde Robinson and Mrs. Ruth Robinson, the victims of the double tragedy at Belle Vernon Wednesday of last week. The finding of the jury placed the entire blame upon Robinson, who first shot his wife and then blew out his own brains. Permission was asked to place Robinson's body alongside that of his murdered wife, but Mrs. Robinson's parents declined.

Granted New Trial.

James Barrett of Dunbar has been granted a new trial on a charge of malicious mischief on which he was convicted at March court. The offense consisted of shooting a dog which belonged to a neighbor and which he thought was mad at the time.

INCREASE IN VOTERS.

Register Assessors' Returns Show Large Gains in County.

The books of the register assessors, which are now being returned, show a large percentage of increase in the number of voters in this county over a year ago. While the footings have only been made in a few cases they are sufficient to warrant the belief that there will be several hundred more names this year than last. Whether this is due to more effort on the part of the assessors to find the voters than before, it is impossible to tell. However, a great many foreigners were naturalized during the year. The increase may cut some figure in the fall election unless the depression that is now predicted for the coke region during the summer should cause a considerable number to leave.

This will mean more appropriation in this as in the number of voters, Unintown is in the lead. It is thought that when the returns for every ward are in there will be from 1,200 to 1,500 names of children between the ages of 3 and 16 years on the lists.

RAIDED THE OVENS.

One African Tramp Had Pair of Brass Knucklers in His Possession.

The cops went after the ovens at Davidson last night and rounded up a half dozen hoboes who were lodging there. One big scout had a pair of brass knucklers in his pocket. He gave several different names and said he was from Roanoke. He looks like several of the rogues' gallery pictures in City Hall and will be held in lock pending an investigation. The others were ordinary hoboes, several of them known to the police. They were searched, questioned and released. Blumark was missing from the ovens, searched the ovens. This is the first time he has been missing for quite a while and the officers are mystified. They hope nothing has happened to his bewhiskered nubs.

Fayette Gets Nearly $100,000.

Fayette county will receive $99,103.75 this year as its share of the State school fund appropriation. Payment of the funds to the different counties will begin on the first Monday in June.

DIDN'T KNOW HIM.

Constable Had Lively Time With Officials at Leckrone.

The prosecution brought by George Stull against John Harding, superintendent of the H. C. Fickel Coke Company at Leckrone, and Charles A. Richey, store manager at the same place, was set for a hearing before Justice John Boyle of Unintown on Thursday afternoon. The prosecutor, who is a constable, was sent out to Leckrone to attend a Slavish christening. He was unknown to the defendants, and they insisted on knowing who he was and what he wanted about the company's property, and it is said before the constable made known that he was an officer some hot words passed and some other little difficulties occurred. Constable Stull afterwards made an information against the defendants charging them with resisting an officer.

Attorney J. Q. Van Swearingen represented the defendants at the time set for the hearing and District Attorney Jones was present for the prosecution. Before the hearing was taken up the prosecutor withdrew the case.

Mrs. C. B. Rix, whose home is in East Liberty, was in Connellsville Wednesday last shopping and calling on friends.

Biddle Hornbeck, yardmaster at Dickerson Run, and a candidate for the nomination of Sheriff on the Democratic ticket, was in Dunbar last Wednesday looking over the political situation.

Miss Belle Bailey and Mrs. Martha Rowan were among those who were shopping in the Young Metropolis Wednesday last.

Henry Cochran, the well known coal and coke operator, has purchased the Dawson Opera House. His son Harry, will be the manager. Some of the best shows on the road will be booked for the coming season.

Miss Olive Kelly of New Haven was in Vanderbilt recently, the guest of her friends.

A large crowd of young people from this place went down to Perryopolis last Thursday evening to attend divine services at the Church of Christ, where a revival meeting is in progress.

Remember the great exit ramp at the Dawson Driving Park next Monday, when our boys will cross bats with the Pittsburgh Postoffice Clerks.

The game will no doubt be a hummer. Miss Maud Rowan was in Connellsville last Wednesday and spent a few hours shopping.

The Y. A. C. had team of this place will cross bats with the Perryopolis team at the Dawson Driving Park Monday morning. The game will be called at 10 o'clock. The price of admission will be 25 cents.

Mrs. A. C. Edwards was shopping and calling on friends in Connellsville recently.

The street car company is erecting a station at the end of the line at Dickerson Run. While it is not a fancy one, it will protect passengers from the rain.

Next Monday is Memorial Day and all over this fair land of ours thousands of graves will be decorated with beautiful flowers. It is a day which has become sacred to us all, and we should observe it in such a manner as to win the admiration of the soldiers living.

The Misses Sherrard were in Connellsville Thursday last on a mission of shopping.

SMITHFIELD.

At Smithfield Will Celebrate Memorial Day on Monday.

Smithfield, May 26.—Jerry Jones Post No. 641, Department of Pennsylvania, G. A. R., have the arrangements completed for the observance of Memorial Day. There are but few communities where Memorial Day receives the recognition that is given it here.

Capt. James S. Sayers of Waynesburg, Pa., will deliver the Memorial address. Captain Sayers entered the army at the age of 17 as a member of the 8th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He began the practice of law in 1874 and is now one of the leading attorneys at the Waynesburg bar. Hon. E. H. Reppert and Col. Edward Campbell of Uniontown will be present. The Sunday schools and civic societies will participate in the exercises. The parade will be headed by our own color band, of which it has been said there is none better in the State outside of the city.

The Post will attend divine services at the Methodist Episcopal Church next Sunday at 3 P. M., on which occasion Rev. J. E. Peters, pastor of the church, will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

It is Memorial Day, not Decoration Day. We would impress this upon the editors and printers. Don't print it Decoration Day. It is not a day of decoration; it is a day of solemnity for the survivors of the war of '61 to '65; a day to be observed in memory of men who died and of others who were willing to die in defense of our country.

Fred Thomas, the fireman who lost his life in a wreck on the Pennsylvania railroad on the Manor Valley branch last Tuesday morning, was buried in the Baptist Cemetery here today. The funeral took place from the residence of his parents near town and was largely attended. Rev. J. W. Hay, preached at the house. The Brotherhood of Firemen, 10 in number, mostly from Coko King Lodge of this town, conducted the ceremonies at the grave. His chapter, who was severely injured in the wreck, attended the funeral. There were 65 caskets and buggies in the funeral procession.

Smithfield's side walks for quantity and quality are above the average of any village of this county. Story cannot say so much for the streets but the Council have put in a new curbside and we hope to make a more favorable report in the near future.

Smithfield's base ball club went over to Maestown today to play them a return game for one Maestown played here two weeks ago, which the walled city boys got worsted in a closely contested game of 11 to 10.

Just got a photo that Smithfield walked them again, 15 to 3.

Confidence, May 27.—The Sullivan
Sluggers opened their base ball season today by defeating the Checker Players in a pretty 11-inning contest by the score of 8 to 7. The game was snappy from start to finish and by brilliant plays the fielders managed to keep the score down. Sullivan, who was on the rubber for the Sluggers, pitched a masterly game, giving but one base on balls and striking 10 men out. Frantz pitched six innings for the Checker Players and was relieved then by Plectator. The first few innings looked like a walkover for the Sluggers, but Frantz pulled his men together and by the sixth inning he had the score tied. It stayed this way until the eleventh, when the Sluggers got desperate and won the game.
Fortney caught a good game and the fielding of McClune and Groff were features. With a little more practice the Sullivan Sluggers will develop a very fast bunch of players and they would like to hear from all first class teams wanting games. Oblopye, Ur-sina, Rockwood and Cuselman prefer

Memorial Day will be observed by the G. A. R. Post and patriotic people at Addison next Monday by appropriate exercises. It is said many people are going there from here. Our town-man, Rev. Chester Livingston Morrison is to be the orator of the day. He is a grandson of Rev. Horace Ludington, for many years a resident of Addison, and whose body is buried in Newberry Cemetery at that place.
Dr. Morrison's father was Rev. Chester Morrison, a life-long member of the Pittsburg Conference of the Methodist Church, and whose early ministry was spent in this region, where he met and married Mrs. Civilla Ludington of Addison. Rev. Morrison is pastor of the Christian Church at this place, and will conduct a suitable patriotic service at his church next Sunday, to which people generally are invited, especially all old soldiers.

material on the ground for his new

We have included our entire line of room-size rugs and ingrain carpets in this sale, in fact all the line connected with our carpet department. At the end of the season, manufacturers are obliged to close out their odd rolls to avoid confusion. We were aware of the fact, and our buyer purchased from one concern 100 odd rolls. The patterns are all very pretty, some of the best produced for Spring, and only good carpets are in the purchase. There is enough in most patterns for two carpets. DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE.

Seasonable Weather Stimulates Buying by Retailers.

New York, May 28.—Dun's weekly review of trade says:

Retail trade is stimulated by seasonable weather and the industrial outlook is brighter on the whole, although several adverse factors have appeared. The big dry goods auction sale opened with an unexpectedly large attendance and good prices were secured. It is particularly gratifying to note that retailers rather than jobbers have made most of the purchases, thus providing prompt distribution. Manufacturing lines report a slight improvement at woolen mills and shoe factories, and while there is more idle cotton machinery, the last Fall river statement showed very little reduction in dividends.

Railway earnings thus far reported for May fall 3.7 per cent short of the same time last year, but foreign commerce at this port for the last week shows gains of $1,837,200 in exports and $549,545 in imports.

It is increasingly difficult to find encouraging indications pertaining to the iron and steel industry. Purchases are small and frequently effected at further concessions, although it is difficult to find definitely lower quotations, except for pig iron, which now averages from $5 to $7 a ton cheaper than at the corresponding date last year.

Textile markets have improved to some extent, weather conditions being notably favorable for retail trade, while the orders for woolens and worsteds increased more than the most sanguine manufacturers anticipated.

Failures this week numbered 226 in the United States against 206 last year.

500 FAMILIES HOMELESS.

But Yazoo City Declines to Appeal for Outside Assistance.

Yazoo City, Miss., May 28.—Five hundred families have lost their homes and one-half of this number are destitute as a result of the recent fire. The committee declined to make an appeal for aid but announced that any contributions would be received and distributed.

Jackson, Miss., May 28.—Bishop Galoway has issued an appeal to the people of the state in behalf of the congregations whose houses of worship were burned at Yazoo City. Seven white churches were destroyed and the bishop suggested that a collection be taken in all Methodist churches. A relief fund of $1,000 was raised here and will be sent to Yazoo City.

CORPSE IN NARATH TANK CAME FROM QUAKER CITY.

Whiting, Ind., May 28.—The corpse of a man was found in a tank of cranberry shipped from Philadelphia. The skull was crushed. The body is so swollen that it is impossible to get it through the opening. Every mark of identification had been removed.

Gallant Sons of Heroic Sires

By SAMUEL HUBBARD

(Copyright, 1904, by American Press Association.)

THE many gallant sons of heroic sires whose names adorn the roster of the United States army are living contradictions of the time worn adage that the sons of great men never inherit the qualities of their fathers. That the military instinct at least is hereditary is abundantly shown in the perpetuation on the present army lists of the names of many old time war heroes who have passed away.

The most notable instance of this transmission of the military genius and spirit from sire to son is in the Grant family. While it may not be given to other Grants to fill so large a niche in the American Pantheon as does the hero of Appomattox, it can hardly be gainsaid that the spirit and characteristics that contributed to the greatness of Ulysses S. Grant are reproduced in remarkable degree in his son Frederick Dent Grant and in his grandson Ulysses.

Now in the prime of life, General Fred D. Grant is almost a perfect copy of his distinguished father at a corresponding age. He has the same square face, the same tawny beard, the same blue eyes and the same quiet and unobtrusive manner that characterized the great "silent soldier." The pictures of General Ulysses S. Grant taken at the close of the civil war and those of Brigadier General F. D. Grant taken today are strikingly similar. Veterans who have watched with keen interest the career of General Fred Grant in the Philippines and elsewhere are well convinced that he is worthy of his name and should opportunity arise would not be found wanting in those qualities which made his father one of the most conspicuous of American soldiers.

Fred Grant was with his father on the field at Vicksburg and for more than an hour was under a heavy fire without showing the least sign of fear. As he was then only twelve years of age, the father's pride was stirred by his son's exhibition of courage. The place that Fred Grant exhibited as a cadet at West Point showed that he had his father's fighting stock in him. He had been in the academy but twenty-four hours when he pitched into a cadet much larger than himself for a supposed insult to his father. At the conclusion of the Fourth of July oration an upper class man in a spirit of banter turned to young Grant and said:

"You know as well as any of us, do you not, that Washington was the greatest statesman and the greatest soldier that this country has ever produced?"

"It may be and probably is a fact that he was the greatest statesman,

BRIGADIER GENERAL FRED D. GRANT.

but I don't think he was any better soldier than my father," was Grant's prompt reply.

"What," shouted the upper class man, "there's no more comparison between your father and George Washington than there is between a plover and the American eagle."

Then Fred smiled. The two hounded each other until they were separated by older cadets, who told them that Fort Clinton ditch was the proper place and an hour before reveille the proper time for engagements of that sort. The two struggling soldiers fought it out the next morning in sunrise, and both afterward went to the hospital.

Fred Grant and other lights while he was at West Point, though his classmates declare that he never sought a quarrel. He had several encounters with Cadet Quincy O'Malley Gilmore, a son of General Gilmore of civil war fame, who, by the way, is another instance of the transmission from sire to son of the military instinct.

It is a question whether he and Grant ever finally decided the question of their comparative fighting qualities. Sometimes one would thrash the other, and then the operation would be reversed. Fred's classmates always insisted that, however else he differed from his sire, he lacked nothing of his father's courage and perseverance, and the same tendency is heard from those who have been intimately associated with him in later life.

Another characteristic besides courage and perseverance which the present General Grant has in common with his father is that of sticking to his friends and doing things for people because they are his friends. Army officers who were lucky enough to have served at West Point with Grant have since had occasion to thank him for efforts in their behalf. The present General Grant is scarcely less popular among his military associates than was the older General Grant.

General Ulysses S. Grant's second son, Ulysses S., known familiarly in his youth as "Buck" Grant, also inherited many of the Grant characteristics, though he chose a civil rather than a military career. The characteristic features and military spirit of the great soldier have, however, descended through more than one generation. No close study is needed to recognize them in Lieutenant Ulysses S. Grant, the third of the name. He is Fred Grant's son and was born in Chicago in 1881, appropriately enough, on the 4th of July, being named in honor of his grandfather, who took a special pride and interest in him. He looks like his grandfather. His nose, mouth and jaw emphasize the strong influence of heredity in the Grant family. A few days before his death General Ulysses S. Grant wrote to the president, asking him to appoint his grandson to a cadetship in West Point, and Mr. Cleveland gladly did so. He was graduated with second highest honors from that institution last June, assigned to the corps of engineers, U. S. A., and is now serving his country in the Philippines. He has the Grant courage and perseverance, and those who have watched his career thus far are fully assured that he will not dishonor the great name he bears.

Another scion of the Grant family is Lieutenant Algernon Sartoris, grandson of General Ulysses S. Grant and son of the latter's daughter Nellie, who married an Englishman. He demonstrated the possession of the military spirit by serving on the staff of General Fitz-Rhugh Lee in the war with Spain and was subsequently given a lieutenant's commission in the regular army, but did not choose to follow the military profession and shortly after resigned.

In the class of 1903 at West Point with Ulysses S. Grant III. were two other sons of famous soldiers. These were Lieutenant Philip H. Sheridan, son of the distinguished cavalry general of that name, and Lieutenant Douglas MacArthur, son of General Arthur MacArthur, first governor of the Philippines. The struggle for first place in the class was between Grant and MacArthur, the decision being in favor of the latter.

Young MacArthur, who has a splendid physique and soldierly bearing, closely resembles his father at a time when the latter, a young Wisconsin lieutenant, earned a medal of honor by seizing the colors of his regiment at a critical moment and planting them on the captured works of the enemy on the crest of Missionary ridge, and no one doubts that the younger soldier is quite capable of the exercise of similar coolness and bravery if occasion arose. Young Sheridan is likewise "a chip off the old block" and could no doubt, if put to the test, duplicate the famous ride "from Winchester, twenty miles away," and fight with no less valor and spirit than did his heroic and dashing sire.

In the class at West Point just below that from which the three young soldiers named have graduated is another gallant son of a heroic sire. This is Sherman Miles, son of General Nelson A. Miles. Though yet an embryo soldier, he shows in marked degree the qualities which raised his father from the ranks to the command of the army of the United States.

The Spanish-American war brought into actual service the sons of many soldiers who had fought in the civil war, both the north and the south being represented. Among these were Lieutenant Thomas M. Anderson, a son of General Anderson of civil war fame who also served in the Philippines. Lieutenant Anderson had the distinction of hauling down the Spanish colors from the blackhouse at San Juan and is now attached to the Thirtieth Infantry. A son of "Fighting Joe" Wheeler, Joseph Wheeler, Jr., is a captain in the artillery corps and well known as one of the bravest young officers in the service. Another distinguished leader of Confederate horse, General Fitz-Rhugh Lee, the Bayard of the south, has a son, Fitz-Rhugh Lee, Jr., in the United States cavalry who was in service in Cuba and showed that he was worthy of his sire. James Longstreet, Jr., son of the famous General Longstreet, so justly respected by his adversaries of the north as a foe-man worthy of their steel, is a first lieutenant in the gallant Thirteenth cavalry. A son of General Micah Jenkins, who was killed in one of the campaigns with Longstreet, is Major Micah Jenkins, who showed his heroic metal at Santiago. Captain Malverna Hill Barnum of the Eighth United States cavalry, formerly assigned to duty as instructor in military and international law at the General Service and Staff college at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., is a son of General H. A. Barnum. General Samuel S. Sumner, who has been prominent in the Philippine campaign, but who won his first renown as a lieutenant in the civil war, is a son of General Edwin V. Sumner, an old time war hero, now retired.

Not infrequently does the son of a naval officer seek his fortune in the army, and vice versa. Thomas F. Schley, a son of Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, entered the army as a private in the signal corps and rose from the ranks, being now a captain of infantry. Another naval officer's son is Thomas E. Selfridge, Jr., who graduated last year from the Military academy, whose father and grandfather, both of them admirals, were on the retired list of the navy at the same time.

The instances of the gallant sons of heroic sires who have donned the uniform of Uncle Sam might be still further extended. Doubtless one reason why names are perpetuated in the army list from generation to generation is that high ranking officers are anxious to put their sons into the service and use their influence in Washington to that end. The nonpartisan appointments which the president makes to the army and navy are usually given to such applicants. Undoubtedly, however, the military impulse and genius, like many other qualities, are heritable, and this probably accounts in large measure for the fact that the sons of fighting fathers adopt so commonly and with so much alacrity the profession of arms. The military spirit plainly runs in the blood.

PETE SHEPPARD'S BARGAIN.

Got a Good Dollar From Treasurer McLean for Fifty Cents.

Uniontown, May 26.—County Treasurer McLean was fingered a plucked dollar yesterday that some honest taxpayer had put onto him, when Prothonotary Peter E. Sheppard walked in.

"What'll you give me to get back this bogus plunk you passed off on me?" says McLean to Sheppard. Sheppard took the dollar and looked it over carefully. "It had been a good coin of the realm at one time, but some owner of it had defaced it with a hammer and punch so that it was valuable only as a watch charm."

"Well, I will give you 50 cents for it," said Sheppard.

"None, got to have 75," said McLean.

"Well, I'll give you just 60 cents for it," replied Sheppard. "I know where I can get 75 cents for it and if it ain't worth 15 cents to make the deal we can't do business."

The county treasurer revolved the coin through his fingers reflectively and as the prothonotary started to leave, he said:

"Give me the 50 cents."

The deal was made right then and there.

The initials should have been D. D. James and an order of court was made directing that the records be so amended.
